MONDAY, APRIL 19, 1897.

HE IS CONSERVATIVE.

President McKinley is disappointing the expectations of hot-headed and harebrained partisans. He is not slashing around with a pruning knife to destroy everything possible in the acts of his predecessor. His conduct is, however, what was anticipated by those who had understood the man's nature. Mr. McKinley is nothing more than he is conservative. The first great surprise he gave to people whose solitary principle is that whatever a political opponent does is wrong, was his attitude on the Cuban question. Whereas his inauguration was expected to be the signal for recognition of the belligerency of the rebels, with an ultimatum to Spain requiring her to pacify Cuba within so many hours or give the country her independence, the President never so much as named the troubled island in his inaugural address. His remarks were constructive of a reference to the question, though, and the construction was that the policy of President Cleveland was to be continued. In the matter of the late order of President Cleveland making twenty-one forest reservations in the west, President McKinley gives another evidence of his supreme caution. It was boasted by partisans that he would immediately cancel one of the first strokes of his pen. But he does nothing of the kind. He declines to interfere with the order until Congress legislates upon forest reservations. A special report of the Government Forestry Commission, in advance of the regular annual one, has been made to the Minister of the Interior, in which the desired legislation is outlined. It provides for the military protection of reserved forests against fire and unlawful cutting of timber. It also makes provision for the necessities of settlers on the borders of reservations, in fencing and lumber for their personal use, and for the actual needs of miners lawfully located within the reservations, in timber they require for their operations. It is proposed withal to establish a permanent forestry bureau in the Department of the Interior, and to appoint a commission to survey all reservations so as to determine, both, what portions should be permanently preserved on account of their forest covering, and what should be reopened to entry and sale. President Cleveland's action in proclaiming the reservations in question was assailed as a tyrannical stretch of prerogative, but it seems to have been a statesman-like precaution to save the nation's forest wealth pending its disposition by law. At all events, President McKinley declines to lift a finger to nullify the order. It may be argued that President McKinley's conservatism, of which these instances are given, will stand in the way of his supporting any change in the attitude of the United States toward Hawaii. This conclusion may easily be held to be far from necessary. The Hawaiian question is one that has been in process of evolution for a long period of years. President McKinley's party was fairly committed to the annexation of Hawaii by the last previous President elected by that party. The policy of President Cleveland to restore the monarchy distinctly failed, and he as gracefully as possible accepted the situation when he, on behalf of the nation, recognized the Republic of Hawaii. This recognition included the constitutional policy of the Republic of Hawaii to secure closer political relations with the United States. Therefore, in view of these facts, it would be simply a natural development of the Hawaiian question—one that would do no violence to the American national policy in that regard—for President McKinley to not only sanction but promote any measure for establishing complete sovereignty of the United States over the Hawaiian Islands.

Mr. Balfour, the Government leader in the House of Commons, distinctly challenged the Opposition to move a vote of censure upon the Government, either for its preparedness to use the forces of the crown to resist certain acts of the insurgents in Crete, or on account of the objects for which it is prepared to join in the blockade of Greece. At latest accounts the challenge was not accepted. Liberal statesmen are probably not anxious for power at this juncture.

CANNIBALS TO BE PUNISHED.

They Feasted on an English Trader in the Hebrides.

Victoria (B. C.), April 7.—Naval officers here have received word that one of the ships of the Australian fleet has been sent to the New Hebrides to investigate the butchery of George S. Duncan, a trader from Sydney, who was killed to provide a cannibal feast two months ago. From accounts current it appears that Duncan was systematically crammed with food in preparation for the festival in much the same way as the turkey that provides the Thanksgiving dinner. He had been repeatedly warned that he was trusting the natives unwisely. The natives will be punished.

The Chief Justice on the Japanese.

Chief Justice Judd has a short interview in the Chronicle, in which he says that the principal apprehension regarding the Japanese is that, when they have gained numerical supremacy, they might claim political supremacy in the islands. He gave the figures of nationalities from the present census, and said if the Japanese came in at the rate of 1500 a week, as they had recently, it would not be long until they had overrun the islands.

Another Cable Bill.

Minister Hatch of Hawaii, accompanied by ex-Minister Thurston, were visitors to the diplomatic gallery of the Senate during the session of April 6. One of the bills introduced during their stay, was by Davis (Republican) of Minnesota, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, for cable communication with Hawaii, Japan and China.

DISGRACEFUL VANDALISM.

Fruit and Ornamental Trees of Queen's Hospital Park Destroyed.

Lately some visiting trustees of the Queen's Hospital, in strolling through the beautiful park of the institution, came across a fine shaddock tree whose trunk had been ringed through the bark. Superintendent Eckardt was mortified as well as surprised on having his attention called to the destruction of the tree. He gave orders to the Chinese laborers to keep their eyes open for trespassers. They did not catch anybody at the mischief, but they found more of it done. Among other trees treated like the shaddock, there were more than a dozen limes, a splendid Norfolk pine and two alligator pear trees. In addition to the plain ringing of the bark, a zigzag score was made all round. From the systematic style of the markings, it is suspected that there is some kahuna business in it. There is no need to blame practitioners of sorcery, however, for the plucking of young coconuts by this score, which a gang of Portuguese and native hoodlums have been seen doing. As these are of no value to the despoilers, the motive can only be that of malicious injury. The superintendent now gives formal warning, as will be seen by a notice elsewhere, that a strict watch will be kept and any scamp detected in acts of vandalism prosecuted.

BUREAU'S ANOTHER RECORD.

The President's Nephew Gains More Athletic Laurels.

Stanford University, Cal., April 7.—On Saturday, April 24, Chas. Sumner Dole '98 will take his track team to San Francisco to play off the tie made by the athletic teams of Stanford and Berkeley last year.

By a curious coincidence the captains of the three Stanford teams this year are from Southern California—Dole of the track team, Fickart of the football eleven and Thompson of the baseball nine. Dole is an athlete of unusual ability and a conscientious worker on the track. His example has been worth a great deal to those who are training under his direction. He has taken great interest in Stanford affairs since he entered the university three years ago.

In the last field day on the campus, in spite of a lame knee, Dole pole-vaulted 10 feet 11 inches. This was an increase over his best recorded performance of 10 feet 10½ inches, which is the present coast record. He has lately shown a decided improvement in the broad jump.

Among Dole's records are the coast record for the pole vault, 10 feet 10½ inches; high jump, 5 feet 9½ inches; broad jump, 20 feet 7½ inches; 220 yard hurdle, 27 seconds; 120 yard hurdle, 16 4/5 seconds; and 100 yard dash, 10 3/5 seconds. He is the champion all-round athlete of the Y. M. C. A. on the coast. He is a nephew of President Dole of the Hawaiian Islands. He weighs 170 pounds in running attire and is finely built. His major subject is economics.

BREAK BY BALFOUR.

Seizes Europe with a Suggestion of Alliance with America.

A dispatch of April 8 from St. Petersburg to the New York Herald is as follows: Just at the moment when everyone had made up his mind that all the troubles in Greece and Crete were settled, and after the Bourse had opened buoyantly on the report that Greece had given way, a very unfortunate counterblast has come in the postponement of the blockade and the news of the speech of Mr. Balfour, in which he is reported to have talked of a union with America in case of a war with France or Russia. This latter point sounds so remarkable and improbable that had it not come through the official agency it would seem incredible. At all events, it has produced a strong impression upon a large party here, whose members persistently insist that England is backing the Greeks and wishes to seize Suda bay. To give an idea of these sentiments it has been reported that England is about to force the Dardanelles.

THE NATIONAL FEED BOX is a perfect device for slow feeding in the stables or on the road and is a boon both to the horse and his owner. It is the best device yet invented for feeding all kinds of grain, chopped food, bran mash, water or medicine.

It is made of steel, practically indestructible. The follower slides on a malleable iron rod, riveted to the box, our latest invention. Finely galvanized. Easily Cleaned. Pure and Odorless. Light and Portable. The only box for campaigning. Used and approved by owners and drivers of the fastest horses in the world. Especially adapted to the use of fire and police departments, stock farms, and public and private stables.

Owners and drivers of horses entered for the 11th of June races should see that their animals are provided with these feed boxes. They will be sure winners if they do. Betting men should not invest a dollar on a horse that has not been fed from the NATIONAL FEED BOX. They will be sure losers if they do.

Horsemen generally and every man, woman or child who owns a horse is invited to call and see them at
